It is important that a consumer gets the quality of a product she/he wants. As a consequence, the quality of a finished product should be controlled to a desire level. This is done through statistical quality control. We have univariate process control and multivariate process control. In the case, one is interested in controlling more than one quality characteristics of a product. This project deals with both cases with special emphasis on the second.