

The paper reviews the extent to which mathematics is applied to other fields and how mathematics is developed according to the needs of these fields